Business Model / Unit Economics / Financial health	1. NBFC (Middle Layer) under Edelweiss Group; focus on MSME lending, LAP, LAS. 2. FY24 audited financials show continued profitability but moderated growth; FY25 saw decline in revenue and net profit per media summary. 3. Credit ratings reaffirmed at A+/Stable (ICRA, CRISIL) and CARE A; indicates adequate financial health post-RBI restriction removal.
Source of funding & Industry Funding Scenario	1. Primarily funded via bank lines, NCDs, CPs; backed by Edelweiss Group equity. 2. Industry: NBFC sector under RBI's tighter supervision; funding environment stable but cautious post-IL&FS era; liquidity improved in FY24–25.
Leadership/Founding Team	1. MD: Ajay Khurana (since Apr 2025) 2. WTD: Kashmira Joji Mathew 3. CFO: Sandeep Agarwal 4. Promoter: Edelweiss Financial Services Ltd.
Historical trends in sub industry/Competitive Advantage	ECL Finance's competitive edge lies in our shift to MSME and retail lending, reducing reliance on volatile wholesale credit and building a more resilient portfolio. Our asset-light co-lending model with banks enables scalable growth, stable funding and stronger regulatory alignment in a tightening environment. MSME lending segment growing steadily; ECLF benefits from Edelweiss brand, diversified product suite, and strong risk management post-restructuring.

Decision of student reps (Yes/No)
Comments by student reps	Basis our research, ECL Finance Company seems like a good company to be approved given that they have Edelweiss Group backing (WOS). Company also has significant number of employees and further, the RBI restrictions have been lifted post Dec 24. Finally, it also depends on the role that company is offering but on a first look basis, the company seems to be doing well !
